

Gauri Jauhar

Director - Consulting & Research, IHS Energy

Background

- Gauri is based in New Delhi and is Director Gas & Power for India.
- Gauri has specialized in oil and gas policy development, pricing policy and reforms advocacy through her work as Advisor in BP India on Gas Policy & Regulatory issues since December 2011. In this role she represented BP in industry associations (Association of Oil and Gas operators, CII, FICCI mainly) to present and influence the shape and pace of energy policy reform.
- She also worked with the commercial and country head teams on preparing BP's representations for key Committees formed to drive policy change (Rangarajan Committee, Kelkar Committee, Saumitra Chaudhuri Committee).
- To help with a systematic stakeholder understanding effort, she created a system for tracking key stakeholders in the consuming sectors (power, fertilizer, industry) and the policy and opinion space (Planning Commission, Ministry, Regulator, Media, Consultants).

Industry Experience

- Gas pricing and policy
- Economic & Market Fundamentals
- Government Policy & Regulation
- M&A and corporate strategy
- India, South Asia and South East Asia

Selected Experience

- Prior to working at BP, she focused on oil and gas company financial performance and strategy formulation at PFC Energy (acquired by IHS Energy) for several International Oil Companies, National Oil Companies and Governments since 1999.
- She led PFC Energy's business development efforts in India and Singapore over the period 2006-2011 and worked with the Asia team to build a client base across the spectrum of oil and gas companies, governments and regulators and service companies.
- She started her career in 1997 as a Research Associate at the National Council for Applied Economic Research focusing on macro-economic policy issues for the Indian economy. She also co-authored a paper for the Asian Development Bank - "India's Macro-Stabilization Policy in 1990s: A Review and Assessment" by D.K. Joshi and Gauri Jauhar; published in the book, "The Indian State in Transition".
- Gauri has a Master's degree in Economics from Delhi School of Economics and an MBA (Finance) from Johns Hopkins University .